FRIDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1910.

The year now drawing to a close is one of the most eventful in history, because of a worldwide movement to secure a larger measure of political and religious liberty for all the peoples of the earth. Nations that have slumbered for centuries are awakening and breaking the bonds of superstition with which their spiritual and temporal rulers have so long and so successfully shackled them. The teeming millions of China, India, Persia, Turkey and many lesser nations, held down for ages by despotic religious and political systems, are striving for better things. In the more enlightened nations the people are discarding effete institutions and outworn customs which serve only to hinder progress. They are demanding of their public servants a higher degree of efficiency and, better still, a higher standard of morality. It is the exception now when a man of notoriously bad morals is elected to office. And what we see now is only a beginning. These are the times predicted by the prophet who said that men would run to and fro and knowledge would be increased. People everywhere are growing better because they are growing wiser.

Politicians who prescribe jail sentences for the big rich know very well that under present conditions such a remedy is not practicable. The lawyers have made the laws and usages of the courts such that it is almost impossible to punish for any crime a violator of the law who has the money to pay crafty lawyers. There are plenty of rich murderers, but when was one hanged? The trusts will be lawless as long as they exist. The only way to get rid of them is to abolish their mother—the tariff.

A Washington woman followed a Washington man to Selma, Ala., and gave him an unmerciful horsewhipping, because, as she alleged, he had told a lie. In December, 1864, a woman who had been prominent in Richmond society cowhided a member of the Confederate congress on the floor of the representatives' chamber while the house was in session. The same congressman after the war became a distinguished United States senator. The affair never got into the newspapers.

A subscriber inquires if Houston has the right to claim Brazos county as Houston territory. Depends on how you look at it. For some purposes Bryan is in Houston territory and for others Houston is in Bryan territory. For instance, we go to Houston for tropical fruits and Houston sends students to Bryan schools. Bryan is willing to reciprocate.

One of the funniest things in the papers lately is the description in the Washington news reports of the manner in which certain eminent statesmen entered the senate or the house. Elaborate reports of such grandstand plays are in a class with the half-column obituary of the White House bull calf.

If anybody had offered Ned Green money as a reward for voting the democratic ticket he would have resented it as an insult. But the title of colonel was too alluring. He just couldn't resist it.

Jacksonville truckers are buying automobiles by the carload. Bryan truckers could get into the market a week or ten days ahead of Jacksonville. All they need is intelligent co-operation.

Texas is fifth in population and tenth in percentage of gain. So, after all, there is no reason to be disgruntled. Only a few states have done better.
